

Quality.

PCCA carries the torch.

We know that quality compounding starts with quality chemicals. That's why we conduct 14 tests and analyses on every ingredient and reject almost 200 chemical lots each year. But it doesn't stop there. It also means providing the industry's best education and training programs (over 115 in 2013) combined with more consulting pharmacists on-hand than anyone else and access to more than 8,000 formulas. What does all this add up to? Assurance that compounding pharmacists and their customers can experience quality without compromise.
