Company Background

Everyware was launched by Larry Talley and his partner Scott Orlinsky in Florida, in 2015. Everyware started by helping the hospitality industry increase sales, mitigate merchant risk, and improve customer service through two-way text messaging. Now headquartered in Austin, Texas, Everyware is growing quickly. The company continues to expand its platform, expertise, and services to enable every business in need of easy-to-use, contactless payment and messaging solutions.

Product Overview

Everyware offers simple billing solutions for organizations in a wide variety of industries helping companies collect payments and connect with customers, especially through text messaging, the ultimate contactless technology. The company helps clients to boost revenue, reduce chargebacks and refunds, as well as improve customer service. There is no other highly secure, mobile communication platform and payment gateway on the market that combines these tools to meet the demand. It is the most straightforward, simple, and scalable pay by text platform that has the capability to work alongside existing systems with easy integration.

Testimonial

"Fantastic product! Everyware should be everywhere! A payment solution that's designed to integrate with existing business software, allowing for easy patient follow-up, simple invoicing with cash collections — and with saved money compared to our current merchant processor."
